

The Natural Resources Defense Council is one of the nation's most effective environmental action groups. Our mission is to safeguard the Earth: its people, its plants and animals, and the natural systems on which all life depends. JOIN OUR FIGHT!

THOMAS B. COCHRAN, the Wade Greene Chair for Nuclear Policy, is a nuclear physicist and senior scientist in NRDC's nuclear program, as well as the author or co-author of several books and numerous articles on nuclear weapons, nuclear weapons proliferation and nuclear energy. He received his doctorate from Vanderbilt University in 1967 and has been with NRDC since 1973. Tom is currently a member of the Department of Energy's nuclear energy research advisory committee and has served on a number of government and non-government advisory committees. Tom received the American Physical Society's Szilard Award (1987) and the Federation of American Scientists' Public Service Award (1987). He is a fellow of the American Physical Society and of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

GEOFFREY H. FETTUS is a senior project attorney for NRDC's nuclear program. His litigation and advocacy work focuses on the beginning and end of the nuclear fuel cycle, including issues associated with uranium mining and radioactive waste disposal. A graduate of the University of Wisconsin Law School and Haverford College, Geoff worked as an assistant attorney general in New Mexico and for a public interest law firm in New Mexico before joining NRDC in 2001.
